ProtonVPN is a relatively new but rapidly growing VPN provider based in Switzerland. Last year they introduced an iPhone app to their VPN clients, but this year they announced a new Android app as well. The Android version of ProtonVPN offers users a bit more security than the iOS app, with a native apps for easy connection management, a kill switch feature and some additional privacy options. Security features ProtonVPN has recently updated their Android app and added a few new features to make it easier to connect and use. One of the most important ones is the Kill Switch, which you use to make sure your connection gets interrupted if your mobile device gets damaged or stolen. You can either enable it automatically when the connection is active or you can enable it manually whenever you start the VPN connection. In addition to that, ProtonVPN also allows you to manually reconnect to the VPN after a short disconnect period. This prevents anyone from accessing your internet traffic and helps you stay private when, for example, you connect to a public WiFi hotspot. The app also integrates with the ProtonMail email service, which allows you to configure the app to automatically connect whenever you receive new messages, including emails with a link to the service. You can also use the app to block ads on websites you browse on, which is done via an extra option in the app settings. What's more, the Android app also has a range of additional features, including: An intuitive user interface A web browser A QR scanner Tabs and a back button Quick Settings What's more There is no denying that there are some downsides to ProtonVPN, namely the fact that you have to install the app on your phone instead of the app being automatically downloaded. The Android app is slightly slower than the iOS app, which you can change in the settings. In addition, the Android app doesn't use a VPN when you are not connected to a server, which can be easily avoided. However, the good news is that you don't have to pay anything for the Android app.

In addition, ProtonVPN offers an easy to use website where you can sign up for a free account. What's more, you can try out the service without paying anything. The cost The current version of the ProtonVPN Android app is free, but the service requires a subscription that costs €5 per month or €45 per year. If you want to get a refund, you can do so at any time. If you don't want to use a paid subscription, you can pay for a one time use of the service using Bitcoin or any other method of payment. The service doesn't charge a monthly fee, but it does charge a one-time registration fee. Summary If you want to stay safe from malicious threats, make sure your connection is protected,
